

Morning Routines

Included is an example of a morning routine I may have in my classroom. It is for a third grade classroom and explains the first hour of the school day. I included this because I believe the first part of the day in the classroom is so important for setting up a successful learning atmosphere.

Although I created my morning routine for a third grade classroom, it could be used for any grade level with just a few adjustments. If I were to be in a kindergarten class I may only have five minute morning meetings and less independent work time. A fifth grade morning routine may only have a class meeting once a week for a longer amount of time.